Update on our CSR Project in the Western Cape

As part of our ongoing commitment to ICT we are proud to announce that our sponsored student Unathi Tombela graduated in May 2012!

Upon graduation, he began working at Caffe Milano in Cape Town and is just beginning his career. Unathi aims to take his training beyond cooking, perhaps to food writing or some other related and creative endeavour. We have no doubt that he will be very successful in all that he undertakes!

In addition we are pleased to announce our new sponsored ICT student, Khungiswa Mini. She is a lovely and poised young woman, 21 years of age, with a three-year old child. Khungiswa is very focused on getting a job and improving the lives of her family members. We have great confidence in Khungiswa's ability to achieve what she sets out to do, and we wish her all the best!

ENOUGH!

www.enough.co.za

ENOUGH! is a movement for the people of South Africa, formed by Ryan Pickford and Brenda Ross on May 16, 2012. We've had enough of police corruption, police harassment and police abuse.

ENOUGH! was inspired by the hijacking and abduction of Ryan on May 11, 2012 by corrupt South African Policemen. Instead of being a victim he stood up and spoke out showing others that they should not tolerate the anarchy that is growing within our country.

We are aware that there are good, honest and committed policemen in this country; sadly they are outweighed by the corrupt ones. Police are meant to serve and protect you, not hijack you.
We have the support of Crime Line, Justice Project South Africa and eblockwatch, and together we will make a difference.

Our Objectives:

- To raise awareness of the mounting police corruption, harassment and abuse in South Africa
- To educate & inform all living in South Africa of their rights and equip them with tools & knowledge in the event they are stopped by police
- To create a platform upon which everyone can share their similar experiences without fear of retribution

Our Tools and Activities:

- Your Rights & Tools: On our website, which is loaded with information, contact numbers and a "Your Rights" document penned by Howard Dembovsky from JPSA
- Share your stories: Encouraging those with similar experiences to share them with us in order to stand together
- Reward: Concerned individuals and companies contributed a R100k reward for the arrest and prosecution of the two policemen and their accomplices'
- Car Stickers: Indicating police should follow you to the closest police station, use responsibly & follow guidelines provided on our website
- Media coverage: We have received remarkable support from the media
